What's going on?

I do not have any information or access to information that anybody else on Earth does not have. So this estimate is based on the reading I have done lately, the situation in the world as I see it, the apparent facts in the world, and my estimate of what it all adds up to.

Summary first

The World is on the brink of going down a very dark path. Russia, Iran, North Korea, China, the folks who want to rule us all as authoritarians, and the forces of religious domination and intolerance are on the verge of starting the hot version of a world war that has been building for more than a decade. Most everybody on Earth is on the edge, and too few of us seem to understand this.

Around the globe

Let's just walk around the globe and see what's going on here and there:

- Protests and violence by Islamic fanatic terrorist groups and their followers are emerging throughout the US, Western Europe, the Middle East, and perhaps elsewhere. These are treated as if they were different around the world, but all are happening in the same time frame and appear to be supported by Iran, North Korea, and Russia. These groups live in relative isolation within their host countries, do not believe in the national legal systems, and are using slogans, songs, and other similar propaganda methodologies to bring followers who believe they are in the right but don't bother to check the facts. The protest in support of the very things they revile because of the disinformation campaigns that are being heavily promoted at all levels.
- Russia is in a war to the finish with Ukraine and trying to get more countries involved, being supported by Iran, North Korea, and China with weapons and expertise, and have spent their long-term efforts to destroy the Western alliance by one method after another over many years. They managed to corrupt the US election systems and those in other countries in Europe and disrupted smaller nation states in Africa. What they could not dominate, they influenced, and what they could not influence, they set off to destroy from within.
- China wants the Pacific rim, and the US and much of the world depends on it for integrated circuits and components. The supply chain disruption is underway in many ways, including subversion of hardware and software, infiltration into systems, companies, and governments, and support for other wars around the World. They are building up their military capabilities, going after South America with influence operations and funding, and ultimately verging on taking direct control over Taiwan, Japan, the Philippines, and other island nations in that region.
- Iran wants the middle East and, along with Turkey is likely to be able to take it, if they can get the war in the Middle East to grow. Israel is a keystone here, and antisemitism is the tool of the influence operations to get it done. They are helping many surrounding countries, despite the leadership in those countries desire for peace, to move toward war and instability. Their fanatical leadership is helping to drive the rights of minorities and women out, kill off those who have non-traditional views of sexuality and gender roles, and drive a wedge in the World against Western society.

- North Korea has the singular family leader that now apparently has nuclear weapons and nearly the ability to deliver them to half the World. They are supporting and supplying as well as being supported and supplied by Russia and China, to the long-term and great detriment of their population.

Money is driving much of the Western societies of the world, and money is being used to corrupt these societies because there is enough of it in the big players around the world to bribe, extort, influence, fund, and otherwise take advantage of the economic, influence, and election systems of democracies.

So what does it add up to?

When you start to see the level of influence operations we see today, if you recognize that War is about selling the violence against others to the populations who are the fodder for your war, you will recognize that the run-up to global conflict is underway in a very big way. You see the US;

- Arming Taiwan, setting up to defend Japan and the Pacific rim
- Supporting Europe in its struggle against Russia, which is seeking to expand it to NATO through adding Poland to its target list; and
- Sending more resources to the Middle East to try to tamp down the war Iran is trying to generate;

You should recognize that it is a clear attempt to stretch the US to its ends.

Divide and conquer

The divide and conquer strategy being used against the US it taking advantage of the stupidity of the West by driving wedge after wedge between the people of different faiths, colors, persuasions, and so forth – dividing the US across every available boundary.

- The push toward Trump includes the claim that Biden, only 3 years older than Trump and apparently far clearer in his thinking, is too old; while Trump somehow maintains a slight lead in all the influence operations ... sorry polls.
- The Republican insanity in trying to prevent the US from having adequate funds to support global military operations it is working on, and the general approach to eliminating the government and its so-called “deep state” – the part that makes it less susceptible to violent overthrow
- The left wing of the Democratic party supporting Hamas, perhaps without even realizing what they are doing, and falling for influence operations against young people by claiming the innocent mass murderers should be allowed a respite from being taken apart by Israel in order to give their hostages a break – those hostages including the millions of so-called Palestinians they are holding hostage in Gaza as well as the 200+ recently taken, and the foreign nationals being held by Hamas at their border.

- The LGBTQ folks, young women, and college campuses and leaders who seem to think that they should support Hamas even though Hamas openly states they would kill, imprison, maim, rape, jail, or otherwise brutalize every one of them and are doing so today to those populations in the territories they dominate.
- Antisemitism seems to be a simple and effective tool in this war against sanity. This is nothing new. But the extent to which it ignores historical fact is beyond belief and bespeaks the destruction of the US education system caused by the right wing and southern branches of US politics over the last 50 years or so, and the Western educational system that generally seems to fail to recognize anything based on fact. We keep hearing these assertions about the territorial rights to the area where modern Israel lies, but seem to ignore about 3500 years of documented history, including the history of the last few hundred years, the last 50 years, and the last 15 years. The historical facts seem to be too inconvenient to recall, and so folks just make stuff up.

The news media ignorance and deception

Let's go to the B roll. That is the imagery put on the screen when they don't have real imagery to support their claims, or when they are too lazy to check out the facts. Much of the world media today is dominated by the notion that there are two sides to everything and they have to be presented as equals. Of course there are multiple sides to most things, and usually, one of them makes sense and most of the rest are just so much BS.

As the propaganda rises, the wars come. And that's what we are seeing worldwide today. Here is a crazy example:

Tens of thousands of anti-Israel protesters descended on the White House over the weekend, demanding a cease-fire amid the war against Hamas, as they refused to denounce the terrorist organization for its civilian-targeted brutality. - Fox News

Now Fox News is recently one of the least reliable sources of information in the US, which brings me to doubt it happened at all. Of course it was also carried by the Hindustan Times, FirePost, and CNBC. But coverage in the US news was really dominated by Trump in a civil trial, and in case you forgot, there is also a war in Ukraine, mass shootings in the US are still going on but don't even make the news in most cases. The Mass Shooting in Maine (remember that one), the deadliest so far in 2023, disappeared from the news within a few days. There were 7 mass shootings on November 5th (yesterday) and none of them made the national news in the US.

Conclusions

I'm going to sum this up pretty simply.

The world is in a downward spiral toward a global war.

The influence operations, disinformation, and propaganda are part of the roll-up.

Unless the Western World starts to focus seriously on the big picture, this is where it will go.

I do not expect that the world will listen to this cry for sanity and focus on saving us all.

I do expect that things will get worse before they get better, possibly much worse.

Wake up and prepare for what comes next. Come together or be conquered.
